COLOPHON

Ștefan Căltia (b. 1942) is a leading figure of Romanian contemporary art. His works, which demonstrate a complex artistic approach to landscape, memory and the relationship with place, were first exhibited during the 1970s.

The marionette, the clown, balancing precariously on a sphere, holding a mirror or part of an inverted world -- these figures date from his discovery of the circus. Personal experience, the act of running away with the circus are transposed into works that bring back the atmosphere of the circus in Romania during the 1950s and 1960s and can be read as allegories of contemporary events.
